Section A: Directed Writing

Read Text A and Text B in the insert and then answer Section A, Question 1(a) and 1(b).

Question 1(a)

Reread this extract from Text A:

> Of course, overthinking can be exhausting. I must be careful to have boundaries and to give myself time off because burnout is never far away; I also have to be careful not to end up doing people's thinking or memory storage for them. Because, like all emotions and ways of working, there's a plus and a minus side. Other people get used to you doing all their planning and thinking for them.
>
> On the whole, I love being an overthinker. It's enormously enriching and brings me a very rewarding mental world. I go with it now rather than fight it. Examining every aspect of everything can bring with it the most amazing insights.

Use your own words to evaluate the writer's attitude to being an overthinker. Give details from the text to justify your answer.

Question 1(b)

You and a friend have been asked to work together to organise an event in school or college. Your friend is an overthinker.

Write a letter to your friend, suggesting how you could work successfully together.

In your letter you should:

- evaluate the ideas, attitudes and opinions given in the texts
- consider some of the ways that each of you could help to make the event a success.

Base your letter on what you have read in both texts, but be careful to use your own words. Address both of the bullet points.

Write about 250 to 350 words.

Up to 10 marks are available for reading and up to 25 marks for writing.
